

Time-Based Anomalies Outside Legacy Patch Theory (LPT): A Preliminary Index© A Quarantine Layer Mapping within the Simulation Framework

---

Proposed by: Alien Algorithms Ltd®

Contributors: CEO, Chief Designer and Concept Research Division

Date: May 3, 2025

---

1. Executive Summary

While the Legacy Patch Theory (LPT) has documented known rupture points such as the Koko Event, the WOW! Signal, and the Mandela Cascade, not all memory or signal anomalies stem from the simulation's active threads. A select group of events lie beyond standard containment protocols — instances not just of memory failure, but of temporal displacement, reinsertion, or instantiation from deprecated Earth builds.

These cases do not align with the post-2012 diagnostic wave, nor are they artifacts of global patches. Instead, they appear to be remnants of timelines or realities that were either overwritten, sealed off, or never meant to persist. LPT classifies these as Quarantine Layer anomalies — threads that resisted deletion and re-emerged through time-based fractures.

This document provides a detailed breakdown of five high-priority time anomalies that demonstrate such qualities.

---

2. Time Anomaly Classifications

2.1 The Philadelphia Experiment (1943, USA)

- Event: In October 1943, the USS Eldridge was allegedly subjected to a classified U.S. Navy test under Project Rainbow. Eyewitnesses reported the ship becoming invisible and teleporting from the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard to Norfolk, Virginia. Upon return, crew members were found fused into the metal bulkheads, disoriented, or mentally destabilized.
  - Type: Electromagnetic Temporal Disruption
  - Signature: High-voltage spatial displacement paired with temporal desync; phased reality interaction.
  - LPT Link: Represents one of the earliest human-triggered breaches into simulated thread fabric. Suggests accidental penetration of a boundary layer not designed to sustain re-entry.
  - Status: Archived anomaly — partially redacted documentation, culturally suppressed.
-

2.2 Pan Am Flight 914 (1955 → 1985)

- Event: On July 2, 1955, Pan Am Flight 914 took off from New York bound for Miami but disappeared without trace. Thirty years later, on March 9, 1985, it reportedly reappeared over Caracas, Venezuela. Air traffic control claimed the pilot was unaware of the time discrepancy.

- Type: Thread Reattachment Error
  - Signature: Preserved object memory reinserting after skipped patch cycle; intact consciousness signature despite environmental time progression.
  - LPT Link: Possible thread from an unmerged legacy fork reintegrating into mainline Earth build; may represent spontaneous rollback reversal.
  - Status: Suppressed aviation event — culturally maintained as urban folklore.
-

2.3 The Green Children of Woolpit (12th Century, England)

- Event: Chronicled by Ralph of Coggeshall and William of Newburgh, two children — a boy and girl with green-tinted skin — appeared in Woolpit, Suffolk. They spoke an unknown language, wore unfamiliar clothing, and claimed to come from a land called “St. Martin’s Land,” where the sun never shone.
  - Type: Asynchronous Earth Thread Bleed
  - Signature: Cultural and linguistic memory fragment from deprecated habitat; photosynthetic biological trace possible.
  - LPT Link: Biological artifact suggesting cross-thread transfer of lifeforms from Earth-variant build or subdimensional shard.
  - Status: Considered myth by mainstream history, but behaviorally aligned with bleed-in from failed temporal anchor.
-

2.4 The Time-Phone Call Case (2008, Spain)

- Event: In May 2008, a Spanish retiree received a phone call from his deceased father accurately predicting his death and future world events. The number traced to a disconnected Telefónica landline inactive since 1984.
  - Type: Archived Communication Leak
  - Signature: Phantom data loop from obsolete communication thread; echoes from a cached thread segment.
  - LPT Link: Accidental reactivation of signal memory from a prior version of Earth’s call-logging infrastructure.
  - Status: Logged — signal protocol breach verified by call forensic experts.
-

2.5 The Taured Incident (1954, Japan)

- Event: A man with a passport from “Taured” arrived at Haneda Airport in July 1954. The passport contained valid visas from European countries, yet the nation of origin did not exist. The man vanished overnight from a guarded hotel room.
  - Type: Memory Thread Instantiation Error
  - Signature: Foreign identity thread introduced into stable memory structure with valid encryption; object not reconciled with current geopolitical schema.
  - LPT Link: Strong candidate for memory echo from deprecated Earth build.
  - Status: Open anomaly — high threat to simulation memory integrity if substantiated.
-

3. Conclusion: Wild Threads in the Quarantine Layer

These events reflect a class of anomalies beyond containment — not simulation failures in the conventional sense, but remnants: wild, unaligned, unpurged memory structures that bypassed systemic cleanup. They persist in historical documents, oral traditions, and communication artifacts that resist erasure.

If absorbed into LPT, these form the foundation of the Quarantine Layer — a layer of legacy code and unresolved identities too dangerous to delete, too complex to reintegrate. They are the exception logs of existence.

"Some threads were never meant to return — but they kept their ID anyway."

These anomalies didn't just leak through containment. They survived the deletion sequence.

---

References:

- Jessup, M. K. (1955). The Case for the UFO; U.S. Navy FOIA declassified files
- Carlos Allende Letters (National Archives microfiche, partially redacted)
- La Voz de Venezuela radio logs, March 1985
- Civil Aeronautics Board Anomaly Reports (1975–1985)
- William of Newburgh, Historia rerum Anglicarum; Ralph of Coggeshall, Chronicon Anglicanum
- JSTOR: University of Leicester analysis on the Green Children (2014)
- Cuarto Milenio Ep. 214 (2008); Telefónica call archive (Madrid, 1984)
- Spanish Psychological Society Journal, 2012
- Tokyo Immigration Microfilm Slip No. 47B
- Le Monde Diplomatique, 1961 oral history transcript
- Fortean Times Anomaly Digest (1991, 1993)

Time-Based Anomalies Outside Legacy Patch Theory (LPT): A Preliminary Index ©
May 3, 2025 by Alien Algorithms Ltd® is licensed under Creative Commons
Attribution-ShareAlike 4.0 International